Comparative and cross-cultural approaches to the study of Japan, a teaching team with diverse intellectual perspectives, and a rich learning environment await at the MA Programme in Japanese Studies.

(Part-time basis)

2022-2023
Faculty of Arts

Why MAJS?

Are you highly intrigued by Japanese culture, society, and language? Are you thinking of furthering your studies or career in ways that are related to Japan? If yes, the MA Programme in Japanese Studies, CUHK, may be the right programme for you.

The Master of Arts in Japanese Studies offers training in topics related to Japanese society, culture, history, and language and enables students to better prepare themselves for further studies or careers in directions related to Japan.

What does MAJS Offer?

At the conclusion of this taught postgraduate program, students will be able to:

1. identify and critically analyze major social science theories and approaches used in the study of Japanese society and culture;
2. identify and articulate key social and cultural issues affecting modern Japan;
3. recognize and apply appropriate approaches in understanding a variety of social and cultural issues in Japan;
3. think critically and constructively about Japan, and be able to apply these critical approaches to analyzing other societies.

Who can apply?

Applicants who have graduated from a recognized university and obtained a bachelor's degree, normally with honours not lower than Second Class will be considered, and prior knowledge of Japanese language and culture is not required.

“Out of my interest in Japanese language and culture, I studied the MA in Japanese Studies in CUHK. The course not only enriched my knowledge of Japanese history and culture, but also let me come to know fellow classmates who come from diverse backgrounds while sharing the same interests in Japanese language and culture. Coming from a legal background, politics interest me. It is the course of international relations of Japan that I took from the MA class that inspired me to pursue a Ph.D studying the constitutional revision of Japan.”

“Whether you are a would-be Japanese Studies scholar or a Japanese culture enthusiast, this MAJS Programme would definitely quench your thirst for knowledge of the country’s culture and traditions, and help you build a strong foundation in this area of study. The professors’ research interests, academic backgrounds – in Western countries and Japan – and language abilities together made the Department an ideal place for me to pursue my academic passion and prepare for further study.”

“Throughout my studies in MAJS, I found the program comprehensive and interesting. The stereotype of Japan in my mind was completely changed and I had a new scope on traditional and modern culture of Japan. After graduation, I decided to take a PhD program to indulge in researching Japanese intellectual history and philosophy. During the five-year study career, I was glad to have the opportunity to participate in academic conferences and publish in journals. All these let me better understand the connotation of research and the role of a scholar. These also enhanced the advancement of my mind and thorough detailed thinking.”
